Council Is Streamlined Into Six-Committee Body

Vishinsky Claim That German Problem Should Be Ignored Rejected By U. N. Assembly

BULLETIN
Paris, Nov. 13—(AP)—The Soviet Union today ran into a series of rebuffs in the United Nations general assembly. The assembly refused to consider giving China's seat to the Peiping Communists, agreed to take up a western plan designed as a first step in reunifying Germany, and decided to consider a Yugoslav complaint of hostile Soviet actions. The vote against considering the Chinese representation question was 37 to 11, with four nations abstaining. It followed a sharp clash between U. S. Secretary of State Acheson and Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky. Acheson told the 60-nation assembly "our minds revolt" at the thought of giving China's seat to a regime "now engaged in killing the countrymen of at least a score of the nations seated here."

Paris, Nov. 13—(AP)—Over strenuous Russian objections, the United Nations General Assembly voted today to take up a western big three plan intended as the first step in the reunification of Germany.

The vote was 47 to 6 with 2 abstentions. By its vote, the assembly rejected Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky's claim that the German problem was none of its business. The assembly also beat back a Russian attempt to force off the agenda long-pending Nationalist Chinese charges of Soviet aggression in China.

The big three plan, as explained by U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, calls for the establishment of an impartial, international commission to investigate whether conditions in both west Germany and Communist-ruled east Germany are suitable for holding elections.

Republican Women Urge Non-Partisan Tax Commission

Harrisburg, Nov. 13—(AP)—The Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women called today for appointment of "a non-partisan tax commission" to solve the commonwealth's tax deadlock.

Without taking a stand on candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, the Council also adopted a resolution declaring "the number one national issue is the election of a Republican president in 1952; everything else is of minor importance."

U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft, the only avowed candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, will address the convention tonight. He is expected to arrive in Harrisburg late in the afternoon.

The Council's annual convention, in another resolution, accused the Truman administration of "deliberately building up the threat of all-out war with Russia."

The war threat, the Council declared, was raised "in order to coerce the American people into a willing and patriotic acceptance of more and more federal control over the lives and welfare of our people."

The Council claims a membership of more than 50,000 women in Pennsylvania. (Turn to Page Nine)

Erie Resistor Corp. Strike Terminates

Erie, Nov. 13—(AP)—About 1,300 workers ended a month old strike today at the Erie Resistor Corp., accepting a 10 cent wage increase and a union shop.

The decision to end the strike came after management made the wage increase offer at an all-night session arranged by federal conciliator Grover Stainbrook.

Workers, members of the CIO International Union of Electrical Workers, struck Oct. 17 when the company and union failed to agree on a contract.

The settlement was announced by local union president Robert Seth. A total of 22 persons were arrested, most of them pickets.

James Parks, personnel director said full production will be resumed as soon as workers ratify the strike-ending agreement.

Over 100 in Attendance at Meeting Of Co. Association of Township Officers

With over 100 in attendance, the annual convention of the Warren Association of Township Officers got under way at 10 a. m. today in the main auditorium of the Y. W. C. A. with talks being given by Warren County Sheriff L. E. Linder; H. O. Wheelock of Franklin, district township engineer; H. A. Thompson of Upper Darby, secretary of the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors; and George Potts of Bradford, former president of the State Association and now chairman of the executive committee.

Frank Hall of Corydon township, county president, opened the session this morning and the invocation was given by Rev. Stacey Barr of Warren, pastor of the Free Methodist church. E. E. Jones of Pittsfield, is vice president, and M. L. Wilcox of Kinzua, a secretary-treasurer.

Sheriff Linder spoke on the civil defense program in Warren county, Mr. Wheelock in regard to township road appropriations, and Mr. Thompson about additional appropriations for each township.

Election of officers for 1952 was to come before the convention this afternoon, followed by addresses by D. A. Bailey of Harrisburg, state township engineer, and Mr. Thomson.

EXPANSION PLANNED

Struthers-Wells Corporation, Titusville, was one of the 123 defense plant expansions for whom aid benefits were approved in Washington yesterday by the Defense Production Administration. The Titusville plant expects to spend $1,357,766 for the addition of new machinery for ordnance construction, 60 per cent of which will be tax exempt. Two other Pennsylvania firms were included: Pittsburgh Coke and Chemical Co., Lehigh Valley, $3,672,000, 60 per cent; and Babcock and Wilcox Tube Co. Beaver Falls, $5,750,150, 50 per cent.

'Greenback Party' Has Presidential Nominee

Seattle, Nov. 13—(AP)—A Seattle neighborhood grocer is the nation's first nominee for the 1952 presidential race.

But, he says modestly from behind his campaign counter, he doesn't really expect to win.

The Greenback Party announced in Indianapolis yesterday the nomination of Fred C. Proehl of Seattle for the White House.

The party platform, in brief, is: "Let's have more of the green stuff."

It advocates issuance of greenbacks by the government "directly to the people for services and supplies."

More Education Week Events Listed By School Officials

Every parent in Warren is going to be fully conscious of the aims and purposes of American Education Week if school officials, teachers and PTA groups have anything to say about it.

Additional announcements concerning the special open house parties being held at the various buildings include plans at Seneca building for its party at 8:00 p. m. Wednesday. The program will present an outline of a day's work in school and a demonstration of how the school work is presented to the children. The regular meeting of the PTA will follow the visitation.

Also on Wednesday, 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock, Home street school will greet its parents and friends. In this first half-hour, the teachers will try to explain some of the important phases involved in education of a child; in the second, parents may ask questions for an open discussion period. Parents may feel free to go from room to room as they wish, it is stated by the principal.

Thursday evening will be Parents' Night at Beaty Junior High School, doors to open at 7:30 and visitors to follow a regular class schedule. Further details of these plans will be announced later.

In observance of this very special week, a capacity crowd of parents visited Johnson school last night, consulted with the teachers and attended the regular PTA meeting. In each room were well-arranged exhibits of the children's work, with many special projects which had been prepared for this event.

After devotions led by Mrs. Milton Kay, a short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Walter Pearson, president. Mrs. James Nordine, program chairman, introduced Francis Johnson, special consultant, who spoke on "Speech Correction, The Sign of Our Times."

Mr. Johnson pointed out that during the past decade more help for the handicapped has been provided. Both private and public charity has focused on the blind, the deaf, the crippled and, most recently, upon the vocally maladjusted. A survey of Warren borough school children showed 143 boys and girls with speech limitations.

After an analysis of these limitations and an explanation of the more severe articulation problems, Mr. Johnson gave a number of suggestions for the proper ways to help the small child learn to talk correctly.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by kindergarten mothers, the committee headed by Mrs. Preston Dunham, assisted by Mrs. James Chilli, Mrs. James Connolly, Mrs. Philip Smith, Mrs. Franklin Riggs and Mrs. Bernard Bloom.

This evening's schedule calls for Parents' Night at 7:00 o'clock at McClintock building; at 7:30 at the high school and, at the same hour, Lacy PTA Parents' visitation.

Warren county merchants have donated prizes for the contest including radios, lamps, record albums, clocks and other valuable articles. Merchants cooperating with the Jaycees include: Bleck's Music House, Bevevich Electric Co., Turner Radio Shop, C. Beckley, Western Auto, Warren Electric, Blomquist Furniture Store, and Hummerich Radio Shop, all in Warren; Earl E. Young, Youngsville; Walter Hardware, Youngsville; Schoonover's in Sugar Grove; and the Corner Appliance Company, in Tidououte.

The panel of judges who will select the best speeches Friday night are: Rell Hoskins, Roy Schneek, Harold Hampson, and Dr. Arthur Colley. The winner's speech will be recorded by WNAE and sent to the state finals. The national winners will receive college scholarships among other awards.

Warren High School winners already judged by Mrs. Spencer Myer, R. Pierson Eaton and James Frantz are Dawn Taft and Dudley Danielson. Both of the students are seniors and were judged among 25 contestants, whose recordings were heard at the high school last evening.

Miss Taft is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Taft, 406 (Turn to Page Nine)

Another Important Step In Plan of Operation Set Up By Boro Manager Is Announced

Guided speedily and surely by President William E. Rice through a morass of what otherwise would have been a boondock of red tape, Borough Council repealed its rules which were adopted June 6, 1949, and streamlined itself into a six-committee body, at last night's meeting, in commendable preparation for smooth and well-oiled operation in 1952.

The body also accepted the resignation of Mrs. Marjorie L. Dougherty, borough secretary since 1910, who has taken a responsible position with a local industrial plant, and named Borough Manager L. N. McConnell to the position until the reorganization meeting on the first Monday in January. This action was in line with another plan to streamline the conduct of borough business, adopted at the October meeting, when it was decided to combine the offices of borough manager and secretary.

Mrs. Dougherty's resignation, submitted after years of faithful service which have won her an enviable reputation throughout the state as a successful woman executive, is effective November 15.

Holding the throttle as would an engineer guiding a yard engine through maze of railroad tracks, and successfully avoiding any switch to a siding, President Rice was the cynosure of the meeting as he turned the chair over to Councilman E. W. Patchen and approached his task from the floor. At the very start, he gave credit for the new plan of operation to Borough Manager McConnell.

As a result of last night's changes, Council will be composed of six general committees instead of 17, as follows: Finance, Public Safety, Public Works, Public Service, Buildings and Lands, Parks and Playgrounds. Each committee will be composed of three councilmen, and each councilman will serve on but one committee instead of as many as six different committees, the now discarded plan which Mr. Rice declared had held up and obstructed successful and up-to-date operation of borough affairs. Council president and finance committee chairman shall be ex officio members of each committee.

The rules repealed, Mr. Rice submitted the new ordinance, it passed all three readings, and the new set of rules was then adopted.

As the drastic, yet anticipated changes neared a culmination of achievement, Councilman C. A. Miller fired a direct question:

"Mr. Rice, won't this put a heavy burden on each chairman?"

"There have been on breakdowns as yet, Mr. Miller," said Mr. Rice, and then gave a concise explanation of what is to be gained. He pointed out that the borough manager is the working executive whose duty it is to carry out much of the work which has been attempted by unwieldy committees in the past, and that Mr. McConnell is ready to assume this burden as his daily job, that all the confusion of the large committees will disappear, and that Council members will, actually carry less of a burden than ever before.

The seven new councilmen who will take office after the first of the year were present at last night's meeting: Robert Kopf, W. Beyer Africa, Glenn Patchen, William Pasquerette, C. A. Rudiger, David C. Levine and Freeman Peterson. They also will attend the important meeting of the finance committee tonight. Each one was introduced by President Rice.

Leon Laskaris, a finance committee chairman, reported borough assets of $213,338.14, bills payable of $23,174.91. He submitted the following assessments for resurfacing and curbing: Cedar street, $5,132.40; Linwood street, $5,190.24; Carver street, $15,765.50; Canton street, $15,226.14; Verbeck street, $6,226.98; St. Clair street, $4,707.23; Parker street, (Turn to Page Nine)

There were during World War II peak strength when the armed forces were three and a half times their present size.

In an accompanying letter to Secretary of Defense Lovett, Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) called the situation startling and asked for recommendations to remedy it. There was no immediate comment from the Pentagon.

The committee's study showed that last Sept. 30 there were 361 general and flag officers and 91,081 defense establishment civilians stationed in the Washington area. On April 30, 1945—just before the end of the war in Europe—there were 397 general and flag officers and 98,071 civilians.

In 1945 the armed forces totaled more than 12,000,000 men and women. The present strength is about 3,500,000.

The report said there now are almost as many generals, admirals and defense establishment civilians stationed at the Pentagon and in the various Washington offices as there were during World War II.

One-sixth of the total strength of the famous outfit was represented by the nine units of trim khaki-clad infantry which marched in final review through Philadelphia streets yesterday, celebrating the Armistice date of the first World War.

Leading his men was Maj. Gen. Daniel B. Strickler of Lancaster, veteran of the Mexican campaign and both World Wars. An estimated 200,000 persons, including many families and relatives getting a last glimpse of loved ones, lined the parade route from Franklin Institute to Independence Hall.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 13—(AP)—Elements of the last of six American divisions assigned to the European army under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower are on their way today.

A transport left the Hampton Roads port of embarkation yesterday with several hundred members of the 28th Infantry Division, former Pennsylvania National Guard.

UNION PACIFIC WRECK TOLL OVER SCORE

Evanston, Wyo., Nov. 13—(AP)—Numbred rescue crews today continued to probe the wreckage of two passenger trains in which 20 or more persons died during a collision in a snowstorm yesterday.

An early morning check of the morgue in this small southwestern Wyoming community showed 14 of the 20 bodies identified. Three persons are listed as missing. Eight remain in serious condition, with scores of others treated for minor hurts and released.

The City of San Francisco, sleek Union Pacific luxury train, roared out of the swirling blizzard and slammed into the rear of the half-filled City of Los Angeles. The collision sounded to one survivor "like someone screaming."

The impact crumpled portions of the two streamliners. Bodies and parts of bodies were just "lying around."

The City of San Francisco was thundering across the snowswept, rolling desert about three miles west of this small southwestern Wyoming town, 80 miles north-east of Salt Lake City. It plowed its way through a snowstorm which already had dumped eight inches of snow on the ground. Ten minutes ahead ran the City of Los Angeles. Both were behind their schedules. The 200 or so passengers aboard each train were getting ready for lunch.

Then the City of Los Angeles halted on the line for a block signal. At 1:32 p. m. (EST) the City of San Francisco hit the last car of the Los Angeles with a thunderous rending of metal. The three unit diesel power plant of the second train went through the last car like a plowshare and crushed four other cars. All cars of the second train bumped off the tracks but remained upright.

Bodies were taken, as they were retrieved, to an improvised morgue at Evanston city hall. The most seriously injured were taken to Evanston's only hospital, Uinta Memorial. Those suffering minor hurts were treated at the American Legion hall.

A large number of physicians were aboard the two trains, returning from a medical convention in San Francisco. They assisted local doctors in administering to the injured.

Survivors were taken by bus to Evanston where they were transferred to another eastbound train.

Red Negotiators Blamed For a New Snarl in Parley

Munsan, Korea, Nov. 13—(AP)—An Allied spokesman said Communist truce negotiators "made it even more clear today" they want to create a buffer zone across Korea to end the shooting now.

The spokesman, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, said this "repudiates their earlier statement" that fighting would not end until an armistice is signed. The United Nations command wants to create a cease-fire buffer zone only after other terms of an armistice are agreed on.

The Reds outlined their position in a five-hour session at Panmunjom while Allied artillery pounded the North Korean positions. (Turn to Page Nine)

Part of Keystone Unit Sails For Third Tour of Overseas Duty in Past 35 Years

Philadelphia, Nov. 13—(AP)—The first contingent of the 28th Infantry Division, Pennsylvania's federalized National Guard, is off for foreign shores today as the Keystone unit begins its third tour of overseas duty in 35 years.

The 28th is headed for Germany, for duty with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Atlantic Pacific Forces. The Navy refused to comment on published stories that the transport General Butler left here for Hampton Roads, Va., and Bremerhaven, Germany.

An Army source said, however, that he understood the Butner's route would carry it near Hampton Roads and then to Bremerhaven.

Other units of the 18,000-man division, brought up to full combat strength by additional soldiers from every state in the union, are at or on the way to eastern ports of embarkation from Camp Atterbury, Ind., where the 28th was trained.

One-sixth of the total strength of the famous outfit was represented by the nine units of trim khaki-clad infantry which marched in final review through Philadelphia streets yesterday, celebrating the Armistice date of the first World War.

Capital Overloaded With "Upper Brass" Senate Subcommittee Says In Report

Washington, Nov. 13—(AP)—The senate preparedness subcommittee complained today that the Washington area is overloaded with "upper brass"—high-ranking military officers—and armed forces civilian employees.

"It is obvious that the defense establishment is tending toward an administrative top-heaviness that is inefficient, wasteful and dangerous," the armed services group said in a report.

"Unless the trend is halted now we could, in the classic phrase, wind up with the fighting forces composed of all chiefs and no Indians."

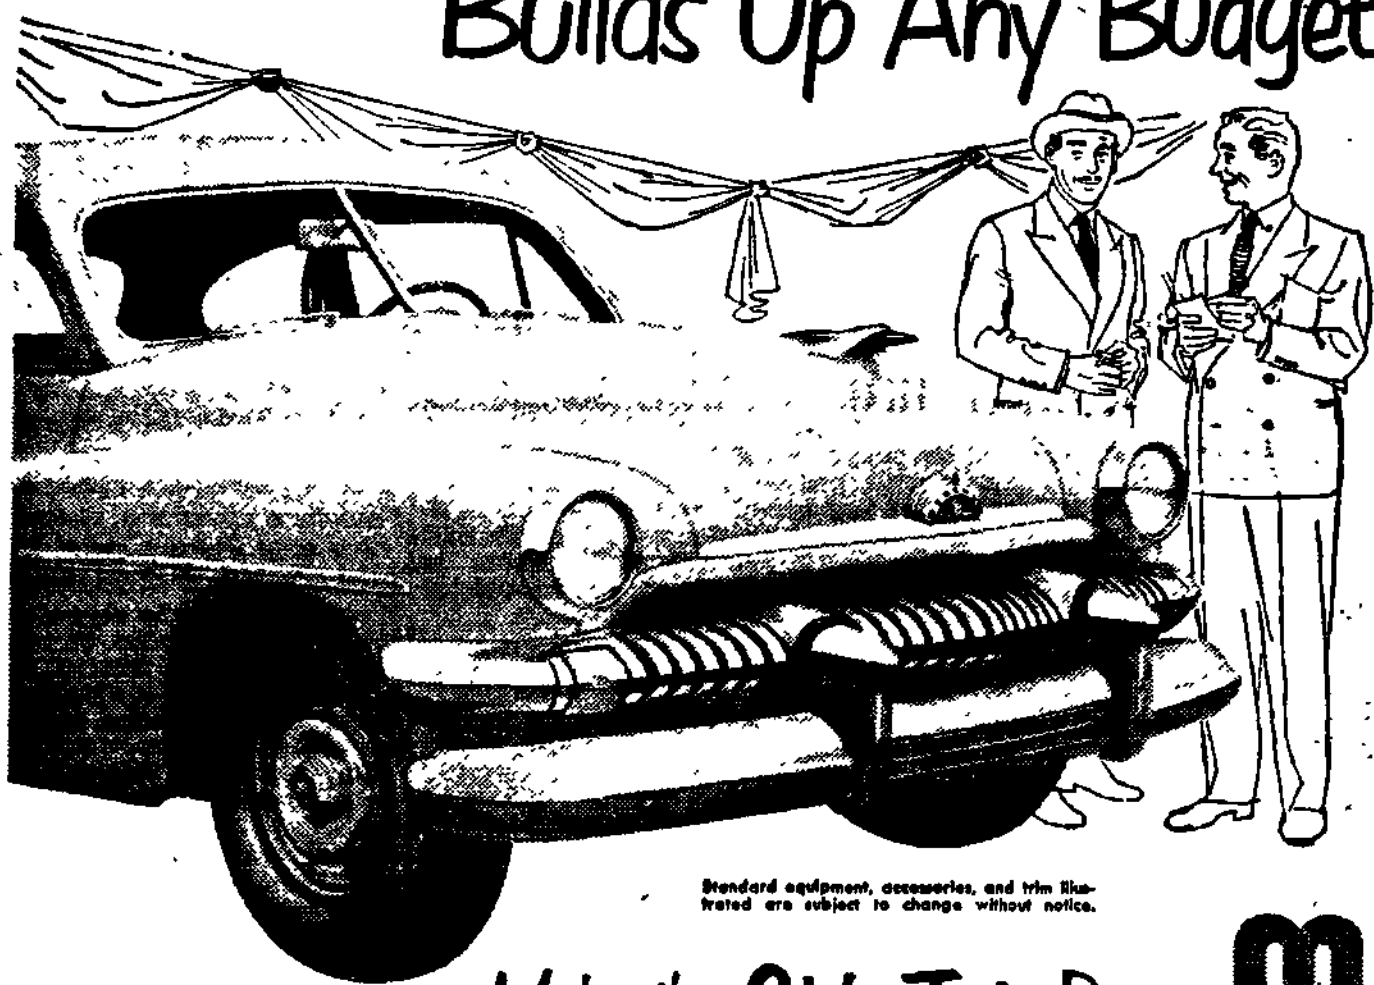

The report said there now are almost as many generals, admirals and defense establishment civilians stationed at the Pentagon and in the various Washington offices as there were during World War II.

One-sixth of the total strength of the famous outfit was represented by the nine units of trim khaki-clad infantry which marched in final review through Philadelphia streets yesterday, celebrating the Armistice date of the first World War.

Story About Baby Who Wasn't Born With Silver Spoon But Has Gold Diaper Pins

By ED CREAGH

Washington—(AP)—This is a story about a baby who wasn't born with a silver spoon in his mouth—but who made out all right in the end. He has gold diaper pins.

That's right—18 carat gold ones. Two of them. And with a start like that, what's going to stop him from being the Rockefeller of tomorrow?

When this baby was born six weeks ago—his name, by the way, is David Michael Creagh—his parents made a solemn promise that they wouldn't go around telling everybody how fat, handsome and well-behaved he was.

But that was before the gold diaper pins arrived as the no-doubt inspired gift of an old school chum of ours.

David's mother tried to be casual about it. "Just what he needed," she said.

"Uh-huh," I said. "I can't think of a thing he needed more—except clothes, cereal, a crib, a play pen, an electric train."

But I got nowhere with that propaganda line. It's already been ordained that he can't have an electric train until he's six months old.

Now these diaper pins would be something pretty special even if they weren't gold. They're about two inches long and they're handsomely filigreed. They're so impressive, in fact, that my wife began to worry about them. She was afraid they would have a bad effect on the baby's character.

"We mustn't pamper him," she said. "He mustn't get used to luxuries that he won't be able to afford later."

"Sure," I agreed. "Besides, what would the other babies say when they saw him sporting gold diaper pins? They'd think he was rich and try to borrow money from him."

So we pinned the golden you-know-whats into David's baby book, to awe him in years to come, and they'd undoubtedly be there yet if my wife hadn't looked through the ads in some of those slick fashion magazines, and...

"Well, I never!" she exploded. "Look at this—diamond-studded clips for a Spaniel's ears, to keep them out of his food! Fifteen hundred dollars! For a dog, mind you!"

"In that case..." I said. She nodded. So we took the page out of the baby book and now David wears gold diaper pins—one where you'd expect to find a diaper pin, the other more publicly displayed, on his sweaters, where nobody could possibly miss it.

We don't really think they'll spoil him—especially since we'll probably have to hook them to buy that electric train.

A national weather bureau was established in 1870 under the supervision of the Army Signal Corps.

To Feature "Cavalcade of Mystery"

This is Phil Wein and Company, one of the features of the eight-star "Cavalcade of Mystery" which will be presented at matinee and evening performances Saturday at the Woman's Club auditorium under the sponsorship of the Phalanx Club of the YMCA.

Wein, a 17 year old senior at Clarion High school has been working on ventriloquism since he was a small boy and, as he reports, "discovered my gift of voice control."

He works with two assistants, Sylvester K. Pine, left, the star of his act and Elmer Elm, right. Pine boasts of a wardrobe consisting of dozens of costume changes. Elm is a simple but lovable character who serves as a "gentleman's gentleman."

For the past year and a half, he has entertained throughout Western Pennsylvania and has appeared four times on the Wilkins Amateur hour over television station WDTV and radio station WCAE where he emerged as one of the grand prize winners. He is a member of the International Brotherhood of Ventriloquists.

Bloodmobile Will Be Here Wednesday To Take 150 Pints

Residents of Warren and vicinity are reminded that tomorrow is Red Cross Bloodmobile Day for this area, and all donors who have volunteered for the visit are urged to do their utmost to keep appointments that have been made for them.

It was stated at Red Cross Headquarters this morning that a discouragingly large number of cancellations have been received the past day or two, due mostly to an epidemic of colds that developed over the weekend. The motto for Wednesday is "You can't get blood from an absentee," and Red Cross officials hope that anyone who finds it impossible to keep his or her date at Headquarters will notify them immediately. Anyone who cannot make a definite appointment will be welcome to be present at his convenience during the Bloodmobile hour, which will be from ten a. m. until 3:45 p. m. The quota is 150 pints.

Prospective donors are reminded that during the four hours prior to the time of their appointment they should not eat any fats such as cream, butter, meat, fried foods, eggs, etc. For nourishment they may eat fruit, bread, crackers, dry toast, raw vegetables, jam, jelly, honey, or drink skimmed milk or black coffee.

The accountants were to be conducted through both Sylvania plants this afternoon in groups of eight, each accompanied by a guide.

Animals Perish In $20,000 Barn Blaze

Jamestown, N. Y., Nov. 13—One person was injured and seven head of cattle perished in a $20,000 barn fire of unknown origin at Kimball Stand late last night which for awhile threatened a restaurant, a grocery store and a home.

Burned about the hand and neck was Jean Heath, son of Ralph Heath, owner of the barn. He was given first aid at the scene and later was taken to a doctor for further treatment.

Heath estimated his loss at more than $20,000, most of it in stock and equipment. The 34 by 50 barn was burned to the ground.

Firemen from Gerry and Sinclairville managed to save the Heath home and the Kimball Stand Restaurant. Both buildings were located about 60 feet from the burning structure.

Army Has Plenty Medals for Heroes

Washington—(AP)—The Army is playing safe when it comes to having enough medals for its heroes.

There are millions of the decorations stored in a Philadelphia warehouse.

They range from the congressional medal of honor to World War II victory medals. There are also awards that are the counterparts of the three "theater ribbons" of the last war.

It is estimated that some 775,400 pounds of metal is tied up in the awards. They occupy 25,320 square feet of floor space—at an estimated storage cost of $17,490 annually.

An army official said there was an over-estimate of demand for the World War II victory medal. But there is no time limit on when a veteran may apply for the award.

The stock includes more than 1,700,000 victory decorations. The army estimates it has awarded approximately 7,500,000 of the victory medals since World War II.

Meanwhile, it is not afraid of having too many heroes for the supplies.

STACK TIPS
Work of erecting a new steel stack at the Crescent Furniture Company went away yesterday when a 50-foot crane boom, being used by the contractor for the job, buckled and allowed the stack to tip into the factory building. No one was injured. Work of taking the old stack down had been completed and the new one was in place when the treads of the crane sank into the soft ground and threw the machine off balance, witnesses said. As the crane went off balance, the boom and new stack swung into the corner of the building and the boom collapsed. Damage to the stack was slight, but the factory suffered a hole in the roof and several broken windows in the top story. No estimate has been made of the cost of repairs as yet, plant officials said.

Favorable Trend In Employment Is Noted in Report

According to a report released today by David W. Levine, manager of the local Pennsylvania State Employment Service Office, Warren county firms made a slight gain in employment (24) during October. Manufacturing concerns indicated a loss of 34 workers from the previous month's level. The most significant change took place in the miscellaneous category which added 59 to its payroll. Only minor variations occurred in the contracting and trade groups.

Mr. Levine commented that there are 566 more workers on the payrolls of these 49 establishments than for a similar date in 1950. Approximately one-half of the increase effected over the twelve-month period represented women. Industrial expansion was responsible for 60% of the new jobs in the community during the past year.

The employment official stated that, despite the favorable trend in employment during the last 30 days, the number of claims for unemployment compensation benefits edged upward from 71 to 92. The current figure, however, is low in comparison with previous years; for example, a year ago the weekly claim load was 148 and in 1949 it stood at 859.

Mr. Levine added that some rise in unemployment is inevitable during the next several weeks when construction activities will be curtailed as the result of seasonal factors.

Plenty of Turkeys For Thanksgiving And Christmas

Plenty of turkeys for the Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons at prices that still make them one of the best buys in meats, will be available to housewives, according to Joseph J. McBryan, regional OPS director.

Turkey production is well above that of a year ago, he said, with many more of the smaller-sized birds coming to market. Prices will be from 3 to 5 cents a pound above those of a year ago, due largely to heavy buying for the men and women in the armed services, McBryan explained.

Since early in September, the armed services have bought about 50 carloads of eviscerated turkeys a week. Even so, present market prices range from 59 to 65 cents for the best grade of small hens to as low as 52 cents a pound for larger birds.

Meanwhile, the OPS director foresaw lower prices for beef, lamb, and veal. He said that reports indicate a steady drop in the price of live cattle in the Chicago market since the OPS launched its drive against slaughterers late in September. These declines not only brought a sharp halt in rising cattle prices but reflect the effects of the OPS drive against violators.

"Another factor, McBryan said, was the increased flow of cattle to market, again in line with OPS predictions.

As to lamb and veal, he said, the new price regulations effective this week should bring more even supplies of these meats into markets generally.

Under the regulations packers and wholesalers are required to supply retailers with cuts of lamb in proportions equal to those for the same month a year ago. This plan, McBryan said, which has never before been written into a meat regulation, is designed to restore normal supplies of lamb and at the same time to ban so-called special cuts which retailers were forced to buy at above-normal prices.

MRS. HETTIE D. McGRATH
Corry Journal: Mrs. Hettie D. McGrath of RD 2 passed away Sunday night at 9:10 o'clock at Corry Memorial Hospital where she had been a patient since October 27. She was born in Columbus township near Colza on October 8, 1863, daughter of the late Welcome and Fanny Holmes.

22 Penna. Counties Join Civil Defense Broadcast Trials

Francis J. Buchanan, assistant county director of Civil Defense, and Fred Plummer, county Red Cross chairman, were guests of the Civil Defense Radio network, Sunday afternoon, when the local station of Homer Haines, Warren-Kinzua road, was used in conjunction with those of amateur operators in 22 western Pennsylvania counties, joined by operators in New York, Ohio, West Virginia and Canada.

Glenn Neilson, Jack Nordine, Richard Gilson and Henry Walker, all local enthusiasts, aided in the participation with other stations, and they introduced Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Plummer as a general discussion of the Civil Defense program was heard by all stations with Washington and Harrisburg stations standing by. Excellent reception and split second timing indicated the tremendous value that this network will be to Civil Defense in case of a disaster, true not only of this section but of the nation as a whole.

Mr. Walker, who is chief of radio communication for Warren county, pointed out that a regular sending and receiving station is being installed on the third floor of the Court House annex. The station will be able to operate 24 hours a day on its own power. Also available will be four mobile units which will be utilized throughout the county at various locations depending on disaster needs. It was also stressed that, in case of a power failure, all residents are urged to tune in on radios for instruction and information from County Civil Defense headquarters. In case of a power shutdown, emergency power will be used by this station and by WNAE with the Civil Defense station's announcements being broadcast over WNAE on a different frequency.

At present there are a few details to be worked out as to its state-wide scope, but for the most part Civil Defense networks are operating and have been operating for several months.

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK

President Truman asks for "more opportunities for better education for each individual and for all" as public schools across the nation observe the 13th annual American Education Week. Sponsored by the National Educational Association, the American Legion, the U. S. Office of Education and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, this year's observance is being held November 11 through the 17th.

In his statement in connection with the opening of Education Week, the president says: "No nation in history has relied so heavily for its strength on universal education as does the United States. In this time of crisis -- immediately and over the long pull -- we must unite to develop that essential strength with all the vigor at our command."

"Our continuing military and industrial might, so necessary to the preservation of our freedom, rests squarely on the number of technically trained young men and women our schools can produce. Equally important, our effective pursuit of the goals of democracy depends on the qualities of insight, judgment, self-discipline, and unselfishness which each person contributes, at his best, to the common welfare. In furthering these objectives, American Education Week is performing a genuine service to the nation."

The two major activities which distinguish American Education Week are school visitation and educational interpretation. During this week, the 210,000 public school buildings in 85,000 school districts throughout the nation will be holding open house for their owners -- 150 million people of the United States.

The general theme for the annual observance is "Unite For Freedom." Many communities opened their observance with special Sunday church services, while others will portray the theme in art exhibits, physical education and vocational education demonstrations, music festivals, programs and pageants.

In Warren, each school will have a special open house between now and Friday, with parents invited and urged to visit the classrooms and meet the teachers.

ORCHID FOR EFFICIENT PUBLIC SERVICE

Marjorie Lowe Dougherty performed her usual duties as Borough Secretary at Council meeting last night, stacked her multitude of legal papers and portfolios together at the close of the meeting, and left the Council chamber for the last time.

Mrs. Dougherty, perhaps the best known of all business women in a community where many women are active in business, has served the Borough a long time and has served it well. She submitted her resignation last night, to be effective November 15th, and has taken a responsible position with a Warren industrial concern.

Marjorie, as she is known to the many who have known and respected all members of the Lowe family since they were children, has been a hard-working, reliable and efficient public servant. By her devotion to her work, far beyond the actual call of duty, she has become known throughout Pennsylvania as a woman eminently successful in public affairs.

The Times-Mirror humbly joins with Marjorie Lowe Dougherty's veritable host of friends and admirers in wishing her happiness in her new work, and a continuation of the success she has already achieved.

Our congratulations to the 23 members in the class of Nurses' Aides who qualified to participate in the capping exercises held last evening at Founders Hall in the First Methodist church. A word of praise is also extended Red Cross officials and committee members who organized the class.

A number of outstanding entertainers have been booked by the Warren Phalanx Club for the Cavalcade of Mystery, being presented Saturday afternoon and evening as a benefit for the organization's service work. The entertainment is for a most worthy cause and all attending are assured a program of unsurpassed mystery and enjoyment.

School officials in both the borough and county have left nothing undone to bring to the attention of everyone the fact that American Education Week is being observed this week. The cooperation of all, especially parents of children attending schools, is urged to make the event a success.

"I Won't Interfere With the Efforts of My Friends"

Here And There

Editor Here And There Column: If you remember printing an article in your column in the July 6th issue, that I sent to you, and mentioned an old photograph of the Pisto employees taken perhaps sixty years ago, I wondered if there would be anyone still living in Warren who could give the names of the people in the picture.

I was surprised and pleased to get an answer from a well known Warren lady who gave me the entire list except four and also a number of names of people employed later. The lady is Mrs. Jessie Branch Donovan of Jackson street, who was also employed by the Pisto (I believe as a book-keeper for about eight years) and she also had in her possession two more pictures of the group and sent an old invitation to me that she had received to a maple sugar party given for the employees of the Pisto on March 31, 1899 and signed by E. T. Hazeltine. The request to please bring a small spoon was written in one corner, and the invitation was headed by a photograph of the big team of and the large dray loaded with horses owned by the company, cartons of pisco and underneath the picture was printed: (Pisto)—70 gross; (Driver)—Nat Gross; (The Ponies)—4000 lbs net.

I am sending the list of names as Mrs. Donovan gave them to me and perhaps if you could find space to print them, they would be of interest to many of your readers of the older generation.

The names are: Arthur Bogart, Eugene Abbott, Mary Ott, Sarah Herrick-Kitchen, Myrtle Waters-Messenger, Eva Mengle-Eitinger, Hannah Dell Sweeting, Rose Newberry, Alice Hazeltine-Pixley, Nina Winton, Mary Herrick, Retta VanOrd, Ada Cook, Helen Herrick, Jennie Taylor, Jennie Wade Howard, Louise VanOrd, Maggie Young, C. I found her a very nice little old lady, still very active, and it is a pleasure to know her for which I'd like to thank you. Strangers That Pass in the Day. It did not require a person with the experience and deduction powers of Sherlock Holmes to discover that a car which pulled up to one of the parking meters about 10:15 Monday morning carried newly-weds from Connecticut. It bore license plates from that state and on the back ledge of the vehicle, well loaded with garments, suitcases and other luggage, could be seen (from our second story window) a corgie, box of cigars and box of candy (extra large). Presently a smiling young couple, each carrying a number of boxes, approached the vehicle. When they started to examine the time on the parking meter, (which wasn't necessary because it was a holiday), we called to them: "Wish we had a bag of rice!" The man looked up and inquired, "and what would you do with that?" Informed that we would shower them with it, he responded, "Well, you wouldn't be far off." Further conversation developed the fact that they were married a week ago last Saturday -- in Connecticut!

Nat Drake, Ben Kinnear and other business men associated with the Retailer's committee of the Chamber of Commerce are hoping for some nice weather long about the 23rd, a week from Friday, when ceremonies are planned incident to the turning on of the festive Christmas lights in the borough, recalling that those who participated last year, including o-o Santa Claus himself, were almost snowed under in the heaviest blanket of the early winter. . . . And according to our Almanac, for the period November 20 to 23, there will be a cold wave, with fair and colder temperature and chill winds reaching deep into the south. . . . Metropolitan stores are said to be assigning 15 per cent more space than they ever have in the past to toy departments this year. . . . ## Marshall Plan Experience Aids Italy Military Production

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

ROME (NEA)—How to gear Italy's admittedly great industrial skills and plant capacity into the European rearmament effort is receiving the attention of the American Military Assistance Group here, under Minister Joseph Earle Jacobs and Maj.-Gen. John R. Rice. One thing is certain. Without the knowledge and experience already gained by the Marshall Plan in rebuilding Italy's economy, the military job would be much harder.

Direct U. S. military assistance to Italy for free has barely started to roll. Seventy-five per cent of the 1950 program has been delivered, but that was in the nature of small business. Only 13 per cent of the 1951 program has been delivered.

In the meantime, there is considerable exploratory work going on to see how Italy's own arms industry can be helped through what the U. S. bureaucrats call AMIS—Additional Military Production. So far it is mostly peanut-stand money, the way military appropriations are usually figured. One million dollars worth of aid for Italy last year, $18 million worth this year.

The way AMP works in Italy is the way it works in all Marshall Plan countries. First the Italian government comes in with a project.

THE Italian request comes in to the American AMP officer at the U. S. Embassy. In Rome this is currently Lt.-Col. George E. Wise, an infantry officer whose military experience was in the Pacific in the last war, who has never been to Europe before, and who admits frankly he knows nothing about industrial production. But he's assigned to this job, so he does it.

In this case it amounts to forwarding the papers to what's left of the Marshall Plan mission. They have the engineers and they know Italian industrial production. If they recommend that the project is uneconomical, or the plant is poorly located, strategically, the project may be turned down.

Up to now, the Italians have submitted requests for aid on about 150 projects. Nearly 100 have been approved and are working. Total value of the projects on which Italy asked aid was $250 million. The U. S. contribution requested was $60 million. What they got was $18 million, as mentioned above.

In general, U. S. engineering staffs say that if the good Italian manufacturers are given blueprints and specifications on anything, they can make it.

ABOUT a fifth of the approved American AMP projects for Italy cover production of ammunition. Italy has a first-rate munitions industry already established. It is now turning out everything from .30-cal. to 155-mm. howitzer ammunition and chemical warfare shells. Italy's aircraft industry was pretty well wrecked by the war. It has been held back since by peace treaty limitations. But it is now being reborn.

American off-shore procurement in Italy—the production of military supplies for American forces by Italian industry—is still just a gleam in the eyes of military planners, back in Washington or London. It isn't far enough along for any American official in Italy to know anything about it. But it's considered possible, at some saving to the American taxpayer.

Use of what the Marshall Plan people called "counterpart funds" for increasing arms production is also a possibility. Under this system, the U. S. would sell materials or parts going into Italian military production to the Italian government. The Italian government would in turn sell the American materials to Italian industry.

And the money received by the U. S. government from the Italian government would be available for American spending in

by CHUCK LOSH

The government last week placed a ban on any model change by television manufacturers for the duration of the emergency. This move, in substance, that the present 700 models will be with us for some time to come. This is actually a break for the public. In the past, contrary to popular assumption, the latest model T.V. set of various makes has been the one to be discarded. Most 1950 models, for instance, were superior to most 1949 models. The 1951 crop, at least in the extremely makes carried by us, is an extremely successful group of T.V. sets. You can buy the latest models with confidence because they are a well engineered group of receivers. If you have been waiting for starting changes you might as well get your receiver now because the 1951 crop will be the order of the day for some time to come. Don't deny yourself the pleasure and entertainment that television affords you any longer. . . . When you buy your T.V. receiver, WESTERN AUTO, 221 LIBERTY ST., PHONE 1453 is your best bet. Here are several reasons why:

1. Western Auto carries 400 brands of T.V. receivers - you can compare the merits of various sets all at once.
2. Western Auto has Warren's best equipped and stocked T.V. service Dept.
3. Western Auto's technicians are Warren's best trained and most experienced.

Drop in soon, won't you? ONLY WESTERN AUTO HAS POWERFUL SIMPLIMATIC POWER BOOSTING.

Letters to the Editor

Chandlers Valley, Pa.,
November 9, 1951.

Dear Observer:
I believe that I speak for the majority of Chandlers Valley residents when I say we are interested in your letter to the editor in Tuesday night's Times-Mirror. And I'm sure you signed your name correctly as it would take an observing person to see so many things in one short winter. We are glad, too, that you spelled Chandlers Valley right out or we wouldn't have recognized the town. We hope you will excuse us for that, because you know how it is—when you are not so young and have spent most of your life in a certain community, you become attached to it, and naturally don't notice all of its defects. You think it is quite a nice little town. That is only human, isn't it? Or no—I forgot—we Chandlers Valley people are not human, are we?
It is true that we have a large number of youngsters from babies up to teen-agers, and we think they are not too bad, as dogs go. Their worst fault is that they get a little noisy sometimes and some of them do have fleas. I'm sorry to admit that last because it does show that we neglect our dogs. We have supposed, too, that we had quite human bus drivers but evidently we were mistaken about that. I know one who drove the Jackson Run bus to Chandlers Valley and Sugar Grove for years and I know he carried children, many times, who were outside his bus limit. And I believe other drivers have done the same.

We aren't so bad on Halloween, either. We don't mind tick-tacks on our windows but we can't let them ring our door bells, ring our school and church bells though. And we do give away lots of "treats."

As for the damage at the Mission church—no one has told me they were Chandlers Valley boys. Has anyone told you they were? And the boy who was hounded into prison by his "heartless neighbors and neglectful parents" was returned to free society quite some time ago. As far as I know he is treated the same as anyone else and I haven't heard of any howl being set up to send him back to become a "permanent prison inmate or a gangster." So we don't have to be afraid to meet St. Peter on that score.

How many years ago did you spend that winter in Chandlers Valley? I'm sure you will be glad to be brought up to date. We have both Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and even Brownies who fly up occasionally. We have 4-H and several other activities in connection with their schools—as many as the children can very well manage.

Our children haven't seemed to feel that they were neglected but perhaps they are like us old folks—not very "observing."

I have always had lots of respect for the Grange as a worthwhile organization and have many friends who are members. But it is not the cure for every ill nor the answer to every problem.

Your letter has sort of confused us after being used to thinking of Chandlers Valley and our friends and neighbors as about O. K., for years, it surely is a jolt to suddenly find out that we have been all wrong about everything, all of this time.

We certainly thank you for opening our eyes.

Very sincerely yours,
A Chandlers Valley Native.

Hal Boyle's Comment

By HAL BOYLE

New York—P—One of the things wives always say to their husbands on wedding anniversaries is:

"Marriage hasn't changed you a bit."

They could pronounce this sentence in a way to make it sound flattering. But usually it has a note of resignation in it, as if they were discussing the Long Island Railroad, which changes about as much as the Washington Monument.

This is my own fourteenth wedding anniversary. And though I shower my Ozark bride with roses and ply her with sirloin, I know that sometime during the celebration Frances will say, rather wistfully:

"But, you know, marriage hasn't changed you a bit. You're just the same as you were the day we were married."

And that will sound odd to me, as it does to most husbands. We don't know just what our wives really expected us to turn into, but we do know that marriage has been a soft cocoon of change. Certainly we aren't the same as we were in our bachelor prime—er, I mean time.

What are some of the changes? Well, one man's story: When I was single I used to have to turn off the alarm clock in the morning. That doesn't happen often anymore.

My breakfast once consisted of a bottle of cream soda and a sack of salted peanuts. Frances taught me that country scrambled eggs and hot tea are just as digestible. Through her I learned how wonderful well-cooked food can be—that it can be fun as well as just a fuel.

I have learned not to go into the kitchen and dry my hands on the dish towels. (This took years.)

I wear slippers now, instead of running around the house barefoot.

I no longer wipe my nose on the dinner napkin. (At least while anyone is watching.)

The bartender no longer cashes my paycheck. I bring it home in my mouth, and Frances takes it to the bank. (The banker doesn't know me, but he bows when she comes through his door.)

I have more buttons on my shirts than I did in the old days, and fewer holes in my socks.

I no longer get run over by milk wagons late at night, and I don't sprain my ankle playing softball any more. In fact I am 25 pounds heavier, and go up stairs one at a time.

Falling hair has changed me from a lowbrow to a highbrow, and given me a faintly intellectual look.

I no longer whistle out loud every time a pretty girl passes. (I hardly even pucker my lips.)

I have learned how to button up the back of a lady's dress (at home) and light her cigaret (in company).

I have forgotten all but two telephone numbers—the one at home, the one at the office.

But most of all, I have changed in getting accustomed to marriage itself. The day I was trundled to the altar I had a wild momentary doubt that I would ever really get used to coming home to the same human being the rest of my life.

That has turned out, however, to be the best part of the deal. Single freedom? I wouldn't trade places with a 'nasty old bachelor for a free key to Fort Knox.

Where do wives get that idea anyway—the idea that husbands don't change? Why, marriage makes a chameleon out of any man—a better chameleon, too. It's the wives who don't change.

Adults frequently add an inch or two to their stature after they reach the age of 21.

Chapter 5

"I'D HAVE to go back to Washington," he explained. "And then there'd be the test flights. There's a new super-charged ship that would take the tests. It will take an altitude of more than fifty thousand feet. It will go faster than sound can travel."

"It sounds wonderful," Jan said. But she got that odd empty feeling inside of her. It also sounded terribly dangerous. "I wish I were a man," she added.

"You do all right as you are," he flamed down at her, so small, so feminine, so sweet. He was glad she was not a man. But he understood what she meant. "Tell you what," he said. "If it comes off I'll make arrangements here at the field so you can follow the tests, listening over our radio in the tower. I'll send you messages so you'll practically be flying with me. Would you like that?"

"Would I like it?" Her heart turned over. It felt as though it might burst. Without thinking, she leaned closer to give him a squeeze.

He was the one to draw slightly away. She ought not to do things like that if she wanted him to behave. She smelled so sweet, her soft hair had brushed his face.

"It will mean a lot to me," he said. Not so much, however, he knew now, as she did. Love had become the most important thing in the world, the one word that made her crazy dive-testing for me, photo mapping, no more teaching duds to fly.

"I like that!" There was a note of indignation, one of teasing. "I didn't know I was a dud. Not when you said I was ready to solo. And what will I do about that, about an instructor?"

"There'll be someone to take my place. But it's not all settled, as I told you. The point is, Jan, you can tell your mother that everything else depends on this: And you can tell her we cannot make any definite plans until after this test flight over our radio in the tower." Jan agreed.

"Meanwhile," Ray said, "you might try pretending a little better. Otherwise you'll never put across the idea that we are engaged."

"I suppose you're right," Jan had to agree with this. And it began to look as though this pretense need only last a short while. "I'm sorry I slapped you so hard. I suppose you were only practicing. But we need not make believe except when Eve's around."

"You'll have to put a little more heart into it," Ray said. "Ray said, 'I'll never fool my mother. Sure, I was only practicing. Don't you know,' he flashed her a grin, 'a kiss, these days, doesn't necessarily mean anything.'"

For some reason Jan resented his saying that. She supposed he had lots of girls. And for some other reason, also unknown, she resented this thought too. "I don't suppose it does," she said. "But I guess I'm out of date. I think it should." Then she added hastily, "We ought to start moving. Ray, if anyone came along he'd think we were necking or something silly."

"He'd have another guess coming," Ray said. "But as a matter of fact only last week the mayor decided that it was okay for young couples to park along this road, to neck, I mean. It seems that was a test case. An officer dragged a couple into court. It turned out they were engaged to be married. And the mayor proclaimed that there had to be some place where couples could park and look at the moon and be cool."

"Well, there isn't any moon to-night," Jan said. She was glad there wasn't, as she knew her cheeks were burning. "So let's get going. And remember, we only have to pretend in front of Eve."

"Don't worry, I'll remember," Ray said grimly. He obediently started the car. He might as well take her home. He would have to find some other way to wake Jan up and to help her.

AFTER a while Jan said, "You didn't tell me who it is that's going to back your invention and the tests. Is he coming down to talk it all over? Is that what you meant by saying you'd know within the next few days?"

"That's right," Ray said. He was silent a moment. Only Ray, the engineer could be heard. He gave a little chuckle. He said, "It doesn't happen to be a he. It's a her."

"A her! You mean a woman?"

"That's right," Ray said again. "Jan didn't see why he had to be so secret."

"Who is she then?" she asked.

"What's her name?" Certainly it seemed odd that a woman would back Ray, although again Jan supposed there was no good reason one should not. Then she remembered that Ray had said it had been a woman, another "she" who had been surprised when she had read the announcement that Ray was engaged.

"Her name is Bernice Darrow," Ray said.

"Why, her father owns the airport here, doesn't he?" That meant that the woman must be exceptionally wealthy and important. Everyone knew who the Darrows were.

"He owns a lot of things," Ray agreed.

For still some other reason Jan wanted to know a lot more about Mr. Darrow's daughter. She waited, hoping that Ray would tell her. When he did not, she hated to ask him.

Besides, they were nearly back home. They would be saying good night within a few minutes. And there would be plenty of time to ask questions about this Bernice Darrow. If she was coming down to talk things over within the next few days, Jan probably would get to see her.

Can I come out for my lesson as usual in the morning? Jan asked when they stopped again in front of her house.

"I'll have to let you know," Ray said. He was thinking that it was plain that Jan did not intend to ask him to come in again. And she had not seemed to care, or to show much interest, when he had said his backer was a woman.

"I may get a wire in the morning," Ray said. "From Bernice Darrow, I mean."

Jan fell into a troubled sleep. She dreamed she was being married and everyone was gathered in a big church and even her father was there. Eve was a nervous wreck because the bridegroom had not shown up. And when he did Ray brought Bernice Darrow with him. He had a rein around his neck and drove him up the aisle, grinning foolishly, and the minister told Ray to kiss the bride and then—fortunately, Jan woke up.

She fervently hoped that she would fall into another dream like that. Some people said that dreams were wish fulfillments. This one, Jan felt, had been more of a nightmare.

HERE AND THERE

in the early evening, but the later at night you look, the more you are likely to see. . . . A "Colonel Gabreski Day" in honor of Oil City's famed war ace who distinguished himself in World War II, and in the Korean conflict, was proposed Sunday at the annual banquet of Polish American War members and families in Oil City.

The period November 11-17 is being observed as Optimist Week. . . . A deal that is pending may result in the change of ownership of one of the oldest business establishments in the block between Third and Fourth avenues in Hickory street. . . . The Rev. Robert Chase Scott, former rector of St. Peter's Episcopal church, Waterford, has accepted a call as rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Kane, without a pastor for several years.

San Francisco, in 1865, was the headquarters of the Pacific whaling fleet.

test flight is much more important than any old wedding. It's terribly dangerous and so. . . . "Why, darling," her mother interrupted this time, "you'd think you were counting on Ray not coming back! Most girls, when their young man is facing danger, such as a war, marry him first. You go off into the fray. I married your own father in a hurry because he had to leave me, because he would be in danger."

"You shouldn't talk that way," Jan broke in once more. This luncheon was worse than she had foreseen. "Of course I don't think anything will happen to Ray."

Aunt Amanda picked it up.

"She wouldn't get engaged to a man who might not come back," Aunt Amanda said. "It seems to me, Eve, your daughter has more sense than you had. Jan is right. It does not have to be a June wedding just so there is a wedding."

"But I've told Jim that we cannot possibly be married ourselves until I get these two sweet children settled," Eve said.

"I don't see, my dear, what Jan's postponement has to do with you. You and Jim Peters can be married, in June, if you like."

"That's what I keep telling Mother," Jane said. She had been surprised at her great-aunt coming over to her side. But she knew it would be more than that to influence Eve.

"Why, darling!" Eve exclaimed, lifting an expressive eyebrow, "isn't that Ray, with that amazing girl—being shown to that corner table with its reserved sign? Of course it is! That's Jan's young man, Amanda. But who on earth is that simply stunning girl with him?"

She did not say more than that, but she might as well have. What Eve meant was, What gives? Why is my daughter's young man, the man to whom she so recently became engaged, lunching in town with another woman? And especially a woman as outstanding, as attractive as the tall, lovely pale girl he was with.

Chapter 6

TRUE to his word, Ray phoned early that morning. But he said that he would not be able to give Jan her flying lesson. He explained that Miss Darrow was expected sometime during the day and of course he would have to be on hand to welcome her.

"That's perfectly okay," Jan said. "I suppose, though, I'll have to wait until Miss Darrow leaves. I don't suppose I'll be seeing you until she does."

Ray said he would call her again before long, so that was all she had to go on.

"Your Aunt Amanda wants us to meet her for luncheon," Eve said. "She is so eager to hear all about your engagement, darling. All about your young man. And you know we owe it to Aunt Amanda, as you are her only niece, great-niece, really, and she always has done so much for us."

Jan knew that Eve never tired of reminding her of all that Aunt Amanda did for them. Aunt Amanda was the rich aunt. She was also an old dragon. But she had her good points. She was generous when it suited her, and had it not been for her, Eve and her daughter could not have lived as comfortably as they had all these years without a man at the head of the household.

Jan did not look forward to this luncheon. But she knew it was something that had to be gotten over with, and the sooner the better.

It would probably be another nightmare. As it turned out, it was.

Aunt Amanda took them to the Colony for lunch. She liked to see the famous personalities who often came there and she was always received with such aplomb by the head waiter.

"Now then," Aunt Amanda said as soon as their order had been taken care of, with much more fuss than had seemed necessary. "I want to know all your plans. What is the wedding to take place? Are you going to wear your mother's wedding veil? You should, you know. That lace was my own mother's. It came from France. How many bridesmaids are you counting on? How many for the reception? If it's over a hundred, Eve, it will have to be held somewhere else. But of course the wedding must be held in my house, in the green room, I think."

Before her mother could speak for her, Jan spoke up.

"It's much too soon to talk about any of those things," Jan said. "Ray and I haven't the faintest idea when we will be married."

"I never heard of such nonsense," she said. "Why did you become engaged to this young man if you aren't in a hurry to marry him?"

"That was a long story, but Jan could not give it to her. She pursued a safer course.

"There are lots of reasons," she said. "It was terribly sudden, our getting engaged. As Ray told Mother, we haven't had time to think beyond that. And now another thing has come up. This seemed as good a time as any to break this piece of news."

"Now, darling," Eve said, looking arch. "I hope you two haven't had a lovers' quarrel."

"It's not that," she said. "It's something much more important. Ray has found someone to back his invention. He's going to try it out in a test flight. And of course we can't plan anything until that's over."

"That's nice," Eve said. Then to Aunt Amanda, just as though she had not heard what Jan had said, "I think June would be nice. I always think June."

"Mother, didn't you hear what I just said?"

"Of course, darling. But I always say when two young people are in love someone else has to think and plan for them and so I. . . ."

"Well, you can just stop plan-

Winn. Jan's pretty face was dark and her eyes glittered. "This

Adult Guidance for Kids Is Fine, but It Can Be Overdone

A GROUP of little boys who organized their own club and built their own club house without grown-up help, decided they needed some rules to govern members' behavior.

Here is what they came up with, after putting their heads together. One. Must be trusted. Two. Must not smoke, cuss, lie. Three. Must not be bossy. Four. Must not be a bully. Five. Must not get silly.

Reading over that list of rules of conduct, written out in pencil in a fat scrawl, I was struck by how practical and down-to-earth kids are when they work things out on their own.

Compare those rules of conduct with the high-sounding phrases adults dream up for kids when their guiding hand is afraid of the reins—and you are bound to be struck by a great difference.

These self-made rules get right down to fundamentals and they are worded so that there is no mistaking their meaning.

Also, they aren't impossible of achievement. They are a set of rules ten-year-olds can live up to.

TOO MUCH GROWN-UP MANAGEMENT

IN the past several years I've had a little to do with several worthwhile organizations for children. But in every case, I've felt there was too much grown-up management.

Grown-ups worded the rules, set the ideals, dreamed up the projects.

Some grown-up guidance is a fine thing. But when we start working with children and young people we ought always to remember that it is their organization—and that the more they are allowed to think things through for themselves the better.

Woman's Club Members Have Address On Egypt

Dr. Norman Morgan, psychiatrist at Warren State Hospital, gave a most interesting talk to members of the Woman's Club yesterday, occasion of the November meeting of the Literature Department.

Through his avocation, sculpturing, Dr. Morgan's interest in Egyptian history and literature developed rapidly. After sketching a picture of Egypt's topography, the speaker delved into the history of this ancient land, as the background for its literature. "The Book of the Dead," or "Chapters on Coming Forth by Day" was emphasized and explained as being ritualistic aids for the dead to get to the other world. Dr. Morgan read several very interesting selections, including "To a Dissipated Student."

Mrs. Wallace Cowden, president of the Woman's Club, explained the project of the General Education, the "CARE for Korea" campaign. She urged club members to make their individual contributions through the Woman's Club office for this most worthy of causes.

Eight Past Presidents Are Honored At Interesting Meeting of Foremen's Club

Ninety members of the Warren labor relations for the Westinghouse Foremen's Club heard a helpful address at their dinner meeting in the Y. M. C. A. last evening, delivered by eight past presidents in attendance. Tom Armstrong, director of plant

John Berdine, Hilmar Ross, Ray Lewis, Wendell O. Lawson, Harry E. Cooper and Merritt L. Rohlin. Dan Walton, executive secretary of the club, introduced the past presidents.

"Leadership in These Times" was Mr. Armstrong's topic, and members of the club acclaimed it as one of the best addresses ever given before the body. Illustrating his talk with a chart, the speaker said there is serious concern today for leaders in the future, leaders in industry, "men who can really lead." He spoke of the "various types" of leaders and "the men who are followers," describing the quality of leadership needed in labor relations, and claiming that knowledge is the outstanding quality necessary.

"Be proud of your outfit, be proud of your company," Mr. Armstrong told the club. The different approach to each problem, leadership through power of example, were emphasized as important.

Those present evidenced much interest in a motion picture, "Building for the Nations," the story of the construction of the United Nations building by the U. S. Steel Corporation.

Carl Jones, president of the club, was in charge of the meeting, and after the delicious dinner had been enjoyed, Chris Pepke led the singing with Lynn Keller at the piano. Guests were introduced by the various plant governors.

Reports were made by Don Anderson, secretary, and Richard Swanson, treasurer.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

EITHER LEAD GETS ALL DIAMOND TRICKS

By OSWALD JACOBY

"How should the diamonds be played in this hand?" asks a Chicago reader. "You need only four tricks in the suit to make the contract, so it looks very easy at the start. In our club we had three different methods, each with its tie off four spade tricks to set the contract. That would entitle South to sit in the corner with a nice high dunc's cap on his head.

This danger rules out a simple finesse of the jack of diamonds. If South begins by doing that, East must win a diamond trick with his remaining king-ten.

Two possibilities remain. After winning the first trick in dummy with the king of hearts, declarer may return a low diamond from his own hand. The other way is to lead the queen of diamonds from the dummy as the first play in that suit.

Either method will bring in all five diamonds as the cards lie. Moreover, either method assures the contract of three no-trump no matter how the diamonds are placed. At worst, West will win one diamond trick; and then South cannot be prevented from taking nine tricks.

The difference is very slight. If West happens to have the blank ten of diamonds, he will win a trick when the nine of diamonds is finessed. West will not get a trick, however, if the queen of diamonds is led from dummy.

The difference is only 20 points, and it will seldom occur. Nevertheless, an expert is the sort of fellow who doesn't throw 20 points down the drain when it can be scored without the slightest risk.

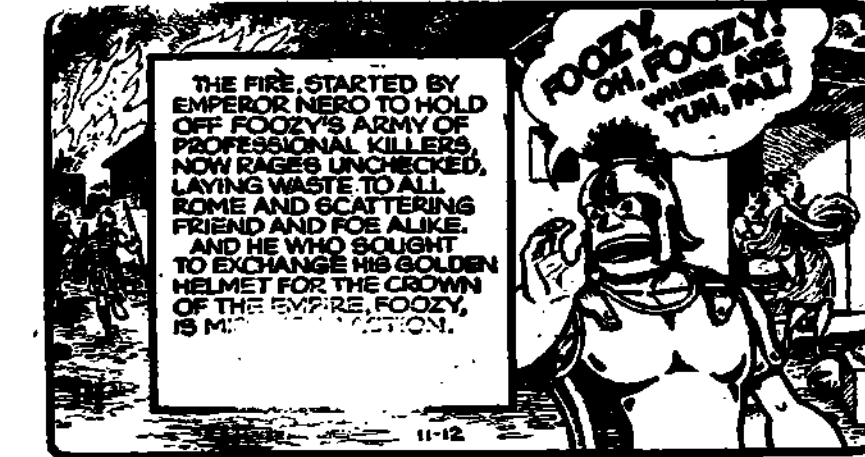

So my answer is that the expert way to play the diamonds is to lead the queen from dummy to start the suit. If East plays low, you let the queen ride for a finesse. If East covers, you win the ace and proceed in whichever way is indicated by the way the cards drop.

THE MARKETS
New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The stock market moved quietly higher today with emphasis on air line issues. There was no forward rush, but rather a gentle upward inclination. Prices were up by fractions to a little better than a point among leaders. Trading started fast with prices steady after the two-day recess over Armistice Day. As the press of week-end orders eased, prices tilted upward.

Violence Flares In Filipino Election
Manila, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Nine Filipinos were killed in firing election day violence today. A total of 104 have been killed since mid-September when campaigning started for the election of nine senators, all provincial governors and municipal officials. More than 66,000 army, regulars and reserves joined police in guarding against attempts by Communist-led Huk rebels to keep voters from the polls. Clashes between troops and Huk broke out in widely scattered spots on Luzon, main island of the Philippines. Rivalry between candidates and political factions contributed to the gunplay. Heavy balloting was reported in Manila, which is electing its mayor for the first time. Heretofore Manila's mayor has been appointed. Few reports were received from other islands.

Two Alleged Yeggs Shot By Patrolmen
New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Two alleged robbers were shot to death today by patrolmen answering the cry of "help" from their victim, police said. In the melee on upper Madison avenue an innocent bystander was wounded slightly. The two dead men were identified as Roberto Carrasquillo, 22, who died at the scene, and Antonio Jose Soria, 26, who died later in a hospital. Both lived New York addresses. Police said they were mugging Walter Bright, 45, of South Amboy, N. J., when Sergeant Martin J. Redden and Patrolman John Kelleher went by in a radio car. Redden said the men fled with $2.50 and Bright's fountain pen as the police yelled at them. The sergeant added that he and Kelleher first fired warning shots, then aimed at the pair. A stray bullet struck Julio Gordon, 15, in a finger.

would violate both the charter of the United Nations and the Potsdam agreements. The vote to keep the Nationalist Chinese charges against the Soviets on the agenda was 30 to 8 with 13 abstentions. Nationalist China has had before the U. N. for two years the charge that Russia boosted the Chinese Communists to power in violation of the U. N. charter and her treaty with Chiang Kai-Shek. The assembly also was expected to hand the Soviets another setback later today by ruling there can be no further debate at this session on the Russian demand to admit Communist China to the U. N. Such action was recommended Saturday by the assembly steering committee, despite strong Communist objection.

The general assembly reconvenes on Dec. 10, in its longest session in history, to make a new try at solving the tax problem to balance the state's $1,220,000,000 budget. The Council also adopted these other resolutions calling for: 1. Creation of a Little Hoover Commission to formulate plans for the reorganization of the executive branch of the state government. 2. Passage of a bill before the general assembly requiring loyalty oaths by public employees. 3. A constructive foreign policy for the citizens of America. Gov. Fine and U. S. Mossadegh Hopeful For Making a Loan
Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Iran's Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, heartened by promise of an international loan, arranged a final day of conferences today with American mediators who are trying to solve his country's oil dispute with Britain. A breakdown of current talks, by nightfall appeared possible unless Iran or Britain backed down. The loan by American-dominated International agency would strengthen Mossadegh's hand somewhat. But the prospects of it failed to arouse any hope among gloomy Iranian negotiators that it would soften Britain's bitter opposition to nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. The shirazi Iranian leader was reported drafting a hotly-worded speech denouncing Britain's attitude. He has scheduled this for delivery Wednesday noon before the National Press Club as a climax to his 23-day stay in the capital.

Brookville Murder Trial Nearing End
Brookville, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The mother of a 16-year-old boy on trial for murder took the stand in his defense to tell the jury he was extremely hard to control. The mother's testimony yesterday followed a declaration by Defense Attorneys William J. McKnight and Jesse Long that the boy is legally insane. McKnight told the jury he will prove Smith's environment and background make him legally irresponsible for his actions. The state charges Smith fatally shot Otto McConnell, a Jefferson county farmer, last April as McConnell milked cows in a barn. The prosecution asked for a first degree murder verdict and the death penalty. Mrs. Louise Smith, mother of 13 children, said Donald was hard to live with and bickered constantly with other members of the family.

VICTORIOUS WARREN SQUAD AND COACHES TO HEAR KURTH AS K. OF C. HONOR GUESTS

Turner Wins Over Docusen, Now After Tilt With Gavilan

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Philadelphia, Nov. 13.—Gil Turner feels he has passed all the tests necessary for a fight with welterweight champion Kid Gavilan.

The 21-year-old Philadelphiaan won his 25th and most convincing triumph of an unbeaten career last night when he threw so many punches at Bernie (Big Duke) Docusen, the clever little Filipino decided decision was the better part of valor and quit in his corner.

Docusen refused to come out for the seventh round. He told inside physician Dr. W. G. B. Terry he had had enough. And in his Convention Hall dressing room, the New Orleans veteran said Turner was just too good for him.

"I had nothing left," Turner said. "I wouldn't have believed one man could throw so many punches if I hadn't felt them."

Dr. Terry, who examined Docusen's cut, bleeding and closed left eye and his slashed right eye, said he probably would have let the fight go on. "But Docusen asked me to end it," he told the referee to give Turner the fight.

Turner, who weighed 146½, in stopping his 22nd opponent had done everything asked of him. The powers who run the fight business told the rising young welter he had to beat some good punchers. So Gil stopped Charley Fursari and Ike Williams.

Then they said for him to beat a boxer. Last night he slaughtered one of the cleverest welterweight boxers in the business, the 24-year-old Docusen who almost won the 147-pound crown from Ray (Sugar) Robinson in the latter's prime.

The crowd of 9,035 who paid $36.905 to see the scheduled 10-

Members of the coaching staff and Warren High school football squad will be honor guests of the Knights of Columbus, together with members' sons, next Tuesday evening, November 20, when Joe Kurth, Notre Dame All-American of the early thirties, will be the speaker. The affair will be in the K. of C. rooms.

Kurth will speak on football at Notre Dame and the spirit instilled in the players by that great old coach, Knute Rockne.

Following his talk, Kurth will show a series of movies of various Notre Dame games. Arline Hunter, instructor at Lincoln school will operate the projector.

To top the evening off in a manner which will appeal to the students present as well as the youngsters, a buffet lunch will be served. K. of C. members are urged to purchase their tickets at the club rooms at once.

Corry Closes Gap But Meadville Is District Champion

A trio of Oil City High backs teamed up to tally twice each and romp all over the victorious Franklin Nursemeyon, 36-2, at Miller-Sibley Field Friday night to close the first season of the District 10, Section Two football conference.

The win closed the gap on the second place Corry Beavers to a one-point margin, but made no change in the standings. Meadville was announced the league winner after Corry bumped off the Oilers, 13-12 November 2.

Below are the official league standings just released by Joe Pasaro of Warren High School:

21 GAMES ON SCHEDULE OF COURT SQUAD

With the 1951 grid season over for most area teams, football equipment has been put in mothballs and minds are quickly being turned to basketball.

Coach Joe Massa started try-outs for sophomores last Friday and will be working up through the junior and senior groups this week, cutting them down into varsity and jayvee squads.

It will be the initial season ofarsity ball for the starting Dragon cagers this year, all 12 of last year's team senior members.

The Massmen's schedule lists 21 games for the season, 12 at home and nine on the road. Ten of these contests are with league contenders, including Oil City, Franklin, Meadville, Titusville, and also Corry, a new district member.

The Beavers are well on their way already this season. Coach Fred Schwab has 35 members working out in pre-season practice sessions, with a nucleus of four lettermen to build his club around. The veterans are Hodie McLean, Jim Bogden, Jim Hannan, and Roger Andrus.

Corry opens its season with the Youngsville Eagles, December 11. Coach H. L. Wells in Oil City, faces a similar situation as the local mentor, with only one substitute guard, Bill Bain, returning. However, he should find some good material in the some 70 candidates that turned out for opening drills.

Down Titusville way Coach Bus Shauer has been drilling about 25 non-football-playing members for nearly three weeks, and with the football season over has added as many more. He plans to start cutting the squad down to workable size today and tomorrow and giving Jayvee Coach Red Lytle a handful to look over.

The local cage card opens on December 4 against Tidoute. It will be the first time the two quintets have tangled since 1953. Other new faces on the list from last season are Erie East and Jamestown, N. Y.

MICH. STATE MAY STICK IN FIRST PLACE

By RALPH RODEN
New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Michigan State, back on top in the Associated Press' football poll, may be hard to dislodge from its position as the No. 1 team in the nation.

The spectacular Spartans take on Indiana Saturday and close out their season the following week against Colorado. Both games should prove easy for the infant members of the Big Ten.

Tennessee, which dropped to second after a three-week reign at the top, has three toughies barring its way to a perfect season. The Vols take on Mississippi, Kentucky and Vanderbilt.

Michigan State, leader the first two weeks, vaulted from fifth place this week after drawings 55 of 158 first-place votes and 1,316 points from sports writers and sports casters.

Tennessee gained 42 first and 1,155 points to nose out Illinois for second. The Illini, Big Ten leaders finished third with 20 firsts and 1,145 points. The three pacemakers are riding seven-game winning streaks.

Three other unbeaten and untied teams followed the top three. Stanford, with eight victories, came in fourth with 951 points. Maryland, boasting seven victories, placed fifth with 927 points and Princeton also unbeaten in seven outings, was sixth with 793 points. Rounding out the top ten are: Georgia Tech, Wisconsin, Kentucky and Baylor in that order.

Now that the leaves are about gone, pedestrians and motorists on Pennsylvania avenue can look across the Allegheny and see the fine progress being made in the new construction work at Warren General Hospital.

Towering Titans Of Westminster Will Open Season Dec. 9

New Wilmington, Nov. 12.—Twenty-six candidates for the Westminster College basketball team finished their fourth week of pre-season drills this week in preparation for a 24 game schedule which opens here on Dec. 9, against Eastern New Mexico University.

The Titan quintet will begin exhibition contests Nov. 19 at Beaver Falls where an American Legion team will furnish the opposition. On Nov. 24 Westminster will appear at Southside Market House, Pittsburgh, against a college all-star quintet.

Five new foes appear on Westminster's schedule this season. In addition to Eastern New Mexico, Westminster will meet Loyola of Chicago, St. Francis of Brooklyn, Lincoln University and Akron Goodyear.

Other top opponents on the Titan schedule include St. Bonaventure, Duquesne, St. Joseph's, University of Pittsburgh, St. Francis (Pa.), Washington & Jefferson, Maryland State, and Carnegie Tech. Four district foes round out the schedule, Geneva, Waynesburg, Bethany and Juniata.

Westminster will play 16 of its home games in Memorial Field House on the campus. The new field house, recently completed and being used this winter for the first time, has a seating capacity of 3,500.

Through The Wind Tunnel

[By The Staff, Distaff and Dastaff]
That grand old Samaritan of the sidelines, Dr. F. G. Haines, was one of the most happy people on the field at the end of the Warren-Jamestown game. Happy also that no Warren player was seriously hurt. Dr. Haines has seen the time when yards of bandages were needed after such an encounter. The years of faithful, invaluable service this fine old gentleman has rendered the Warren teams must establish some sort of record in the nation. But whether it does or whether it does not, Warren is proud of its "Doc" Haines. Something has surely kept him younger than his years, perhaps it is this fine association he has enjoyed with his beloved Warren players. Most certainly, the combination has been a happy one for all concerned. No one person could give more than has this grand old doctor. Appreciation? There's plenty of that, too, on the part of the players down through all these years, even though they may not get around to tell their good pal what they think of him.

Tis said a certain local couple will be looking for a small size Legionsaire cap come Spring.

"I believe part of the answer in the Jamestown-Warren duels may be that the smaller school starts pointing for this one from the opening day of practice," says Frank Hyde in his sports column, "Frankly Speaking," in the Jamestown Post-Journal.

Then Frank goes on to hand this very fine bouquet to Warren: "One Warren observer remarked, 'this was a case of one team being ready and the other not being ready'... I doubt that Jamestown took this one lightly. It is hard to

Bucknell's Myers Leads Scoring For Colleges in State

Philadelphia, Nov. 13.—Brad Myers of Bucknell leads the point-scoring field among Pennsylvania college football players with a total of 84, just two points ahead of West Chester's Fred Prender.

Myers scored a touchdown in the Colgate game on Saturday to pull ahead of Prender who was held to a single point after touchdown in the Bloomsburg game. Both Bucknell and West Chester play one more game this season.

The Associated Press weekly survey shows Myers leading the state in touchdowns with 14. Prender has scored ten touchdowns and 22 extra points to bring his total to 82.

In third and fourth place, although neither boy scored points last week, were Burt Talmadge of Bucknell with 72 points and Ed Romanowski, 69, whose Scranton team was held scoreless by Muhlenberg.

Scranton Franchise In Eastern League Is Sold by Red Sox

New York, Nov. 13.—Louis Baselice of Mount Vernon, N. Y., announced yesterday he has purchased the Scranton, Pa., Class A, Eastern League franchise from the Boston Red Sox.

Baselice is the former owner of the Poughkeepsie club in the now defunct Colonial League.

In the cash deal the Scranton field and all equipment were purchased by Baselice but no players were included. The amount of the sale was not announced.

Baselice said he had investigated the possibility of returning Newark to the International League last month but decided "Scranton offered the greater possibilities."

"It is too soon for us to know if Scranton will have a major league connection in 1952," he added.

Meanwhile, the Albany, N. Y., Times Union reported President Thomas McCaffrey of the Albany Senators had left for Boston to discuss a working agreement with the Red Sox.
